

Wrapping up a BIG year...

Let's take a look back at 2023 and reflect on the significant milestones we have achieved on the Liverpool Hospital Redevelopment project.

Construction of the new four-storey tower, the centrepiece of the first stage of the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct redevelopment, has made excellent progress this year.

We have reached the highest point of construction, opened a new public green space, bid farewell to our tower crane Binyang, unveiled the new facade design and achieved permanent power to the new building.

Liverpool Hospital Acting General Manager Scott McGrath said he was delighted sections of the building's stunning facade were now visible.

"The building is looking amazing. It has been a year of incredible activity and we are excited to see our new building taking shape," he said.

"We are looking forward to a great year in 2024 with the commissioning of the tower."

The LHAP project team has also completed a big year of community engagement, connecting with more than 20 community groups and multicultural organisations.

As we wrap up a busy year, the LHAP team would like to thank Liverpool Hospital staff, community members and key stakeholders who have played a major role in the project's collective success in 2023.

The new year marks a new phase in the project as we begin our transition to commissioning.

In the new year, we look forward to sharing some exciting details about our Community Open Day event and revealing the spectacular artworks planned for the new building. On behalf of the project team, we wish you a safe festive break and a happy new year!

Celebrating our community through arts and culture

Developed in collaboration with our multicultural and First Nations communities, the arts strategy was a major focus this year, led by arts consultant City People and Health Infrastructure. The arts program will be delivered in two exciting parts, focused on celebrating the region's First Nations people and our vibrant and multicultural community.

- New entrance artworks: The artworks will highlight and honour our First Nations people.
- Wall art (envirographics): This artwork will be inclusive of our multicultural community and featured across five floors within patient and public spaces.

New entrance artwork: The new hospital entrance off Goulburn Street will feature two spectacular artwork displays led by First Nations artist ZakPage, co-designed with the local Aboriginal community. The suspended sculpture will be designed to tell stories connected to place. The large digital screen will explore film and design to create an immersive storytelling experience that speaks to traditional knowledge, ceremonies, rituals, and its impact on the Australian identity.

Wall art: We have shared some spectacular artists' impressions of the wall art (see above). These artworks were designed in consultation with the local multicultural community and were developed by four local artists in collaboration with the Barahanos Byrne team.

We understand that art plays an important role in improving the health and well-being outcomes of patients, staff, and visitors. We look forward to sharing more exciting details about our wonderful arts program in the new year.

2023 multicultural engagement highlights

We have had a fantastic year connecting with our community, and had the pleasure of meeting so many wonderful multicultural groups and organisations across south western Sydney.

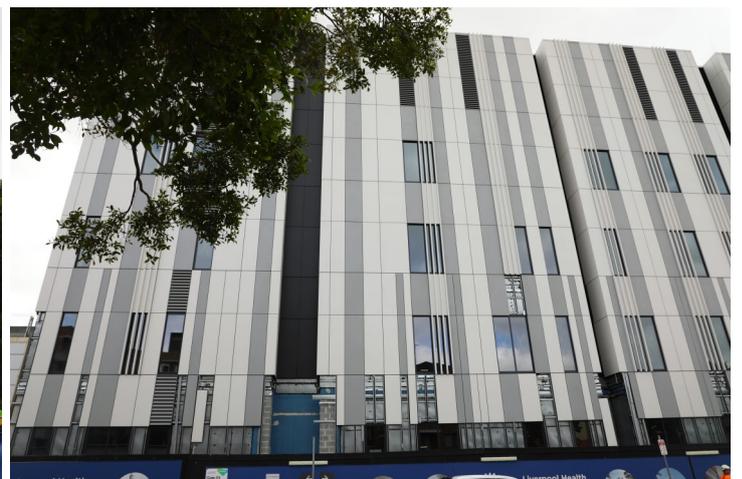

As we look forward to 2024, we are committed to continuing our engagement with our consumers and the community as we prepare for the opening of the new building.

The project team would like to express its gratitude to Multicultural Health Services at South Western Sydney Local Health District for their tremendous enthusiasm and support of our multicultural engagement program.

Take a look at Liverpool skyline's newest addition! With more than 50 per cent of the scaffolding removed, the modern design off Goulburn Street is now on full display.
